New Strategy Seen In Lewis' Coal Parleys

"Divide And Conquer" Seems To Be New Program Of Miners' Chief

TO CONFER WITH FIVE COAL GROUPS

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—(INS)—A "divide and conquer" strategy by John L. Lewis was evident today in invitations sent to five coal groups summoning them to separate conferences on new contracts for his United Mine Workers.

Within the next fortnight the burly labor chief will be hop-skipping from one parley to another to see where he can make the best bargain. When he finds it, the strategy calls for the other groups to accept its principles as a basis for a national pattern.

Picture Of Situation
Lewis completed his invitations yesterday in Philadelphia with a series of announcements giving the following picture:

1. He called upon the anthracite industry to meet with the union June 24. In a letter to Ralph E. Taggart of the Reading Coal & Iron Co. and chairman of the hard coal operators wage agreement committee, he said a new contract should be signed by Aug. 15.

2. He gave due notice that UMW contracts with northern and western soft coal mine operators will be terminated June 30. The notice asked that talks on a new pact be scheduled at a time and place upon which both parties "may mutually agree."

These conferences will be apart from those already begun with southern bituminous operators and the U. S. Steel "captive" mines. UMW representatives are nego-

One of the prettiest views in this part of the country can be seen from the Graceand road near Painter Hill. In the evenings while the sun is still shining the view for miles around can be seen.

A mother quail and about six or eight small quail, were seen on the Graceand road Tuesday evening. The baby quail apparently could not fly yet and all ducked into the bushes at the side of the road as the car neared them.

In the odd experience department one local youth's heart was in his mouth for a few minutes on Tuesday afternoon. Pedaling his way through the downtown section on a bike, the lad's cargo of two cardboard boxes of bottles filled with liquid was hurled to the street at Mill and Washington street. Recovering the cargo while an officer held up traffic, he discovered that not one bottle had broken, fortunately.

Pa New: Before I entered armed services, there used to be a lot of horse shoe courts around town where fellows could play under the lights. Do you know of any places in town where they play or pitch horseshoes? Yours truly, John Masko, City.

Motorists in the city should use double caution in the vicinity of the numerous churches about the city for the next ten days or so. Daily Vacation Bible schools are in progress and many children are gathered in the churches. During recess periods and around noon are the danger periods when the children are out of the buildings.

Although several small showers have been experienced in the city area over the past three or four days, the soil underneath the sod is very dry. It was discovered by Pa New on Tuesday evening as

Girl Wounds "Philly" Baseball Star

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS—Ruth Steinhagen, 19-year-old Chicago typist, was identified by Eddie Waitkus as the girl who shot him in the Edgewater Beach hotel on Tuesday night. Waitkus, (right above) veteran first baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, was shot and severely wounded by the pretty 'teen-aged fan.

Star First Baseman Of Philadelphia Team Is Wounded By Girl

(BULLETIN)

CHICAGO, June 15.—(INS)—Eddie Waitkus, handsome young bachelor first baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, was shot and critically wounded in a Chicago hotel room last night by an attractive 19-year-old girl he had never seen before.

Although he lapsed into unconsciousness shortly after being taken to Illinois Masonic hospital, he regained consciousness later this morning. He is receiving nasal oxygen and is too weak to talk. Physicians described the athlete's condition as "very critical."

CHICAGO, June 15.—(INS)—Eddie Waitkus, star first baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, was shot and wounded shortly before midnight by a comely 19-year-old Chicago typist seeking notoriety.

Police said Ruth Ann Steinhagen told them she had an "urge to kill Waitkus" because slaying someone else would not give her the publicity she craved.

The six-foot tall brunette was described by a friend as being "madly in love" with the unmarried ballplayer. Authorities said she had set him up in her mind as her "dream lover."

Given Blood Transfusion
Waitkus, who was shot with a .22 caliber rifle after being lured into the girl's hotel room by a fan letter, was given one blood transfusion and later administered oxygen through a nasal tube.

The 29-year-old ball player from Melrose, Mass., who was traded by the Chicago Cubs to the Phillies last winter, had sparked the Philadelphia mine's drive during the current campaign.

Physicians delayed an early operation.

Old-Timers Plan Annual Event

Tentative Plans For Picnic And Celebration Set For Mid-August At Cascade Park

FORMER RESIDENTS TO ATTEND REUNION

Old-Timers Day will be held at Cascade Park August 17 or 18. Tentative arrangements have been made to reserve the park for one of those days but the final decision as to dates will not be announced until after the next committee meeting, which will be held in a few days.

President of the Old-Timers, Paul F. Butz, said today that the Emory orchestra had been engaged for the twenty-fifth year to provide the kind of music the group likes.

It is anticipated that many former residents will return to New Castle for the event which has brought so much pleasure and fellowship to the older citizenry.

Officers of the organization that is planning to re-unite many old friends on "their" day are in addition to Butz, Richard F. Rentz, vice president, J. C. Liebenfelder, treasurer, and Ralph Shiner, secretary.

DENIES REPORT

SHANGHAI, June 15.—(INS)—Dr. J. Leighton Stuart, U. S. Ambassador to China, denied today a rumor that the Chinese Communists had told him they would regard Americans as their enemies. The ambassador declared that the story, which also alleged that the Communists had informed him they had no intention of seeking American favors, was "not true."

Sitdown Strikers Are Ejected After Battle In Japan

HIROSHIMA, June 15.—(INS)—Three thousand sitdown strikers and sympathizers were ejected by some 1,300 police today from the Japan Steel Manufacturing company's plant in Hiroshima after a riotous battle.

The police said 29 persons were injured, four of them seriously, in the fighting inside the big factory which is earmarked for dismantling and removal as reparations to the Allies.

The Kyodo news agency estimated however that the injured totaled 100, including 80 union workers and 20 policemen.

An American Military Government official in Hiroshima—the first populated center ever hit with an atom bomb—blamed "outside influences" for the outbreak at the steel plant.

Leaking Gasoline Blamed For Blast

Man Burned When He Strike Match In Cellar Of Pool Room, Tuesday Night

Joe Nycz, of 1703 South Jefferson street, suffered second degree burns of the arms and face, in an explosion in the cellar of the building occupied by Edward Otlowski, of 1307 Moravia street, as a pool room at 7:05 p.m., Tuesday evening. Nycz was treated for his injuries at the New Castle hospital.

City firemen were summoned to the scene by an alarm from Box 55, but found no fire followed the original blast. Fire Chief H. F. Steinbrink stated.

Nycz, it was stated, had gone to the cellar and struck a match. Gas, which is believed to have come from gasoline leaking into the sanitary sewer from a nearby gasoline station, ignited. It followed the sewer out into the street and blew off a manhole cover, nearby.

Officials of the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company and city officials conducted an investigation, which was continued this morning, leading to the discovery that the gas had apparently come from a leak in the gasoline storage tank of the nearby service station.

Four Are Killed In Plane Crash Near South Bend

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 15.—(INS)—Four persons, presumably Chicago residents, were killed today when a plane crashed and burned in a field near the village of North Liberty.

Papers on the bodies indicated the occupants were Dr. S. Sinclair Snyder, Chicago, his wife, a Jean B. Kline and her husband. Authorities believed the Kline woman was a daughter of the Snyders and that Kline was piloting the plane, a Beechcraft "Bonanza".

The bodies were burned beyond recognition.

West Berlin Rail Strikers Reject Plan

Vote To Continue Walkout By Overwhelming Majority It Is Revealed

By RICHARD S. WEIL (U. S. Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, June 15.—Berlin's western commandants will discuss today possible steps to ease Berlin's "little blockade" following rejection by the West Berlin rail workers of a Soviet-American plan to end their strike.

U. S. Commandant Brig. Gen. Frank L. Howley supported the strikers' action because of Soviet "threats" and "intimidation."

Russian Repudiation

The U. S. commandant charged the Russians with repudiating promises made to him and declared that the western powers will make no further attempts to intercede in the strike.

He warned, however, that the allies will not stand by "while the Soviets send armed gangsters to try and break up the strike." He added: "I gave the Soviets an out. I tried to help them all I could. Now let them settle it themselves. It just shows again you can't trust any Communist promise. I am glad the people of Berlin have the good sense to realize it."

Vote To Keep Up Strike

The rail workers voted 6 to 1 to continue their walkout which began 25 days ago in a demand for payment in western marks and union recognition.

Because of the strike, the Russians halted all western rail movement into Berlin, starting a little blockade 15 days after the original blockade was lifted.

Senator Martin Blames Blundering Foreign Policy For World Crisis

In an address before members of the Co-ordinate Bodies of the Valley of New Castle Consistory, in connection with the observance of Flag Day, in the Cathedral, Tuesday evening, U. S. Senator Edward Martin, of Pennsylvania, blamed a "blundering, double-dealing foreign policy," for the period of unrest, confusion, and crisis in which we now find ourselves.

Senator Martin, an honorary member of the Supreme Council, 33 degree, of the Northern Masonic Jurisdiction, was a special guest of the Consistory, at the spring reunion which opened Tuesday, and was received by Ill. John S. Wallace, 33rd active member of the Supreme Council. Mr. Wallace had previously been received and introduced by C. Merle Raisley, Commander-in-Chief of New Castle Consistory, while the other members of the Supreme Council present formed a guard of honor.

Mr. Martin traced the history of our flag, from the time of its adoption as the standard of the great nation, most freedom-loving nation on the face of the earth, and recounted the fact that it has never been carried in a war of aggression. "It has never been the banner of conquest or territorial gain, nor has it ever brought tyranny or oppression to any people on earth," Senator Martin, commander of the 28th Division in World War One, stated.

Some Government Service In Paris Strike Paralyzed

Civil Service Workers' Strike Fails To Completely Cripple Economy Of France

PARIS, June 15.—(INS)—A strike of French civil service workers today paralyzed many government services but fell far short of completely crippling France's economy.

About half the workers at the government ministries did not heed the strike call and gas, electricity, water and dial telephone services functioned normally.

The French National radio network operated on an emergency basis broadcasting a limited program including news bulletins.

Air traffic at Orly and Le Bourget airfields came to a complete halt.

The strike also affected schools, post offices and public health offices.

Air traffic at the Paris airport was immediately affected by the walkout. The government radio station went off the air at midnight.

The strike was called to enforce demands for a revision of statutes concerning employees.

The government warned that any high officials joining the walkout will be suspended, and banned strike meetings on government property. Workers were told they would not be paid if they failed to report to work.

Some Agreement, Or Failure May Be Day's Result

Secret Conferences Are Continued At Big-Four Parley In Paris

REPORTS HOPEFUL OF SOME PROGRESS

By KINGSBURY SMITH European General Manager, I. N. S.

PARIS, June 15.—Western delegates to the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference on Germany predicted that today's secret session will decide whether their Paris meeting will result in some agreement or end in complete failure.

The crucial issue of written guarantees of free access to Berlin will be thrashed out by the foreign ministers, each accompanied by an interpreter and adviser.

Vishinsky Reluctant

Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky already has indicated reluctance to grant the western demands for guarantees but may have received new instructions.

Vishinsky also has served notice that if there is no agreement on Berlin, there will be no accord on the question of a peace treaty for Austria, the remaining question on the agenda.

Western delegates foresee a Big Four "committee of continuity" being set up in Berlin and maintaining contact between east and west in the event that the problem of Berlin train transport is hurdled.

Secret Conferences

The ministers held two secret conferences yesterday, and authoritative sources disclosed that "moderate" progress was made toward setting up a German-Allied Council.

This council would maintain east-west contact in Germany after the conference ends and would include eastern and western Germans with Big Four representatives serving as observers.

The council would act as a bridge between the two zones of divided Germany and seek to coordinate measures for easing commercial exchanges and transportation.

The agreements reached by the council would be subject to approval by Big Four representatives in Germany. Each power could refuse to accept council decisions for its own zone.

The ministers also reportedly argued over the eligibility of Germans serving on the council and whether the council should handle the Berlin currency problem.

Vishinsky, who lodged a vigorous protest against leakages from the secret Big Four sessions was said to have indicated willingness to consider keeping two separate currencies in Berlin provided a satisfactory ratio of exchange is fixed between the western and the cheaper Soviet mark.

Western experts, meanwhile, were reported drafting a basis for an accord in principle. Austria. It was understood a plan is being considered to have the ministers' deputies complete a draft treaty for Austria.

Voting On Labor Bill Changes Is Expected Today

By WILLIAM THEIS (U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Senate Democratic leaders abandoned hope today of getting party agreement on a "maximum" labor bill and moved to vote on the first Taft-Hartley repeal amendment.

Majority Leader Lucas (D Ill.) announced postponement of a second Democratic caucus on the labor issue. But it was learned reliably that policy leaders—faced with wide disagreement—had dropped the caucus plans entirely. Lucas had hoped that modifications in the administration's repeal bill might be held to four bipartisan changes, all of which are acceptable to the Taft forces on the GOP side. The caucus idea was discarded, however, after an all-day Democratic caucus a week ago, and subsequent discussions.

May Reach Vote Today

At the same time, the prospect of several more lengthy speeches suddenly expired and Lucas an-

Unusual Government Project Being Started By Leivo Company

One of the largest "buttoning-up" jobs to be attempted in an industrial plant in America is being started by Matthew Leivo Sons, Inc., local contracting firm.

The federal government has turned over to the local company the task of covering all machinery and equipment of the Keystone Ordnance plant near Meadville.

To Cost Half Million
The job will require the services of about 150 men, will last approximately ten months and will cost approximately $500,000.

All machinery and equipment will be first taken apart, the parts inventoried and then put together again. A preservative coating such as cosmoline will then be applied and the entire plant put in standby condition. One hundred painters will be used in doing necessary painting in and about the plant.

Built During War

Oh pity the guy who is back of the plate, calling the balls and strikes, he has to listen to the players beebes, and learn of their many dislikes. He calls them all as he sees them come, and sometimes he makes a mistake, the ball looks high as it floats on in, and suddenly it will break. Or the catcher pulls it to make it seem, as though it was quite all right, but the ump says "ball" and the bleachers roar and the manager starts a fight. Oh pity the ump as he stands out there, having his little say, he never can please more than half the crowd and it's up, ninety-three today.

Prepare For Tax Agreement

City And Schools To Share Wage Taxes In City During Next Year

OTHER NEWS OF COUNCIL AFFAIRS

City council met Monday in the municipal building and sent to committee, then reported back favorably, a bill which authorizes the city to enter into an agreement with the school district whereby the city will collect the wage tax for both the city and school district next year and the school district will bear its cost of the expenses.

Another bill which received similar action authorizes the tax receiver, Lewis McClung, to act as agent for persons who live here and who are charged a wage tax in other cities. It will enable him to collect the tax he or she has paid in the other city and apply it to his New Castle tax.

Owner of property at the rear of 112 West Garfield avenue, was ordered Monday to abate a water nuisance. An open water course was filled in with the result, council reports, there is a hole there now which is filled with water.

Council authorized the payment of $41,813 to Manufacturers Distributing company, Matthew Leivo & Sons, Inc., and Montgomery Construction company for work done on the new city building. The recommendations were made by the architects.

Request for exoneration of taxes on several lots at Fairfield and Highland avenue was made by St. John's Lutheran church today. The request was referred to the city assessor. According to Solicitor Robert White the property must be used for religious purposes prior to exoneration.

City's liquid fuel fund was increased $7,708.91 by the state, which sent that amount as the city's sixth installment of the motor license fund. The money will be applied to street repairs.

Councilman J. D. Alexander reported receipt of $103 from insurance companies for damages done to the golf course clubhouse during a recent windstorm.

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By DR. ERNEST G. OSBORNE

"Speak to Bruce First"

The adjustments of the young child to a new baby are often made more difficult because friends and relatives don't stop to think. They are likely to "ooh" and "ah" over the baby as soon as they come in and then, as an afterthought, say something to the other child. Naturally, he feels even more out of things than usual and may show his jealousy in some of the many ways that children do.

Recently I heard of a family who after a number of such experiences, worked out a little scheme that helped a good deal. On the door of the house a large sign was posted which said: "SPEAK TO BRUCE FIRST." Just this simple though rather direct hint did the job. Two-year-old Bruce got the attention he needed and felt so good about it that he showed very few signs of jealousy when visitors were around.

You may not want to put signs around the house but the principle of the thing is very sound. However you do it, help the folks who visit your new baby realize that the other youngsters are still in the family.

Fewer Forest Fires Reported

Dry Weather Is Threat, But Fewer Fires Are Reported In Pennsylvania

By JACK WARD (U. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, June 14.—Dry weather posed the threat of fire today to millions of acres of drying Pennsylvania woodlands. Chief Fire Warden Horace B. Rowland said forests are not in too much danger now but he emphasized that extension of the weeks-long dry spell, which has tripped Pennsylvania, increased the danger of fire.

The State Department of Forests and Waters moved into the summer season with a good fire record for the spring despite the 18,000 acres of woodland destroyed by forest blazes.

The acreage was burned in approximately 800 fires during the three-month period March through May. The spring season ends when foliage becomes heavy and well-developed.

Less than 100 fires broke out in state woodlands during March, while more than 300 occurred in April and nearly 400 in May, according to a department spokesman.

"We had a very fine spring season this year," he reported. "As far as we are concerned, it was one of the best we have ever had."

The recent dry spell, when virtually no rain fell anywhere in the state, had very little effect on woodlands, Rowland explained. "Forests are not in too bad a shape now, but things could become serious if the rain shortage becomes extended," he said. "Open fields show effects of the drought now but in the woods conditions are much better."

Human carelessness was blamed chiefly by state forest officials for woodland fires, although the state suffered from an abnormal lack of rain during the spring season. Fires principally resulted from brush fires which got out of control and from cigarettes and matches tossed carelessly aside by motorists and others.

Blazes resulting from fires set by hunters and fishermen have been unusually low this year, according to the department. Fires resulting from sparks scattered by locomotives also have been reduced considerably, they added.

"Gory dew" is a dark-red slimy film sometimes seen on damp walls and shady places. It is one of the lowest forms of vegetable life—an algae.

Local Man Is Discovered Dead

Granddaughter Finds Lifeless Body Of Stephen Vincent This Morning

Stephen Vincent, aged 61 years, of Templeton avenue, South New Castle borough, was discovered dead in the bedroom of the home of his daughter, Mrs. Michael Polio, with whom he resided, at 8:15 a.m. today, by his little granddaughter, who went to his room to find out why he had not made his appearance this morning.

Mr. Vincent had taken his own life by hanging himself, Coroner Charles E. Allen, who was summoned to the scene, discovered. Sheriff Frank L. Cohn and Deputy Sheriff Thomas O'Brien were also summoned by members of the family.

Mr. Vincent had been despondent ever since the death of his wife, twelve years ago, members of the family stated. He had been employed by the New Castle Refractories Company.

Survivors are three sons: John, Michael and Stephen, Jr., of this city; three daughters: Mrs. Mary Gonda, Mrs. Elizabeth Polio and Mrs. Margaret Carr; and six grandchildren.

The body is at the Noga funeral home, South Mill at Reynolds where friends may call anytime after Thursday at 10 a.m. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Local Man's Launch Performs Well At Conneaut Lake

tiating in Bluefield, W. Va., with the Southern Coal Producers Association, which turns out about one-third of the nation's soft coal production.

To Resume June 23 The contract talks with the captive soft coal pits of the U. S. Steel company, which employ some 20,000 miners, began in Philadelphia Monday, but recessed four hours later until June 23.

Meanwhile, the nation's 450,000 miners are at work "stabilizing" the industry by not working. Lewis is decreed they should be idle this week. The only activity is production of coal stockpiles, which will place the mine chieftain in a better bargaining position.

A quick repercussion was felt, however, by the railroads, which furnished more than 31,000 employees as coal shipments were halted.

Lewis remained mum on reports that he would like to see Harry M. Moses, president of U. S. Steel's H. C. Frick Coke Co., made a coordinator "czar" of the industry to regulate production and distribution, and negotiate labor contracts.

Plan No Surprise One soft coal operator explained that the "czar" plan was no surprise, pointing out that "since the recent death of Charles O'Neill—leading negotiator for a large group of northern operators—there has been some talk of finding a man willing to tackle such a job."

George H. Love, president of Pittsburgh Consolidated Coal Co., largest commercial soft coal producer in the world, said the coordinator would represent operators in Pennsylvania, northern West Virginia, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio.

"The purpose," he explained, "would be to bring order and dignity into labor relations of the industry and to avoid the chaos which has too often attended labor negotiations and inconvenienced the public."

STAR FIRST BASEMAN OF PHILADELPHIA TEAM WOUNDED

ation to remove the bullet from the wall of Waitkus' right chest, where it had lodged after striking him in the front as he was seated in a chair, and passing to the right of the heart.

Caused Mental Anguish Miss Steinhausen was quoted by police as saying Waitkus "caused me great mental anguish because he reminded me of my father". She later said that the ball player reminded her of "everybody, especially my father".

She told newsmen that "the tension has been building up within me and I thought killing someone would relieve it". She added that she first got the "urge" two years ago while riding on a bus and it "kept nagging at me".

Police Capt. John Warren described the girl, the daughter of a die-setter, as a "very nervous, but unemotional girl with an active mind". He said she had become infatuated with Waitkus two years ago and had a very complete "file" on the infielder's activities.

Re-enacts Shooting Warren said Miss Steinhausen was quite calm when she re-enacted the shooting in the hotel room she had taken just for the purpose.

Miss Steinhausen told James Cohn, assistant state's attorney, as she described the shooting in the hotel room, that Waitkus greeted her with the question, "What is this all about?" when he came to the room in answer to her fan letter.

She said she originally intended to stab the ball player but that she saw she could not reach him as he sat in a chair in the room. She said she ordered Waitkus to get up and go to the window and then took the gun from the closet with the warning:

"For two years you've been bothering me. Now you're going to die."

The girl related to authorities that she went to the closet again to get another bullet to commit suicide but that she was unable to find one.

Miss Steinhausen said she had forgotten she had put extra bullets in the dresser drawer and then became frightened by Waitkus' groans as he lay on the floor. She then called the hotel switchboard and reported she had shot someone.

At first when asked what her motive was, the girl replied: "You can ask my psychiatrist."

WEST BERLIN RAIL STRIKERS REJECT PLAN

the strikers reflected a sudden reversal of earlier return-to-work sentiment. Reports that a number of strikers had been threatened with reprisals aroused Howley's ire.

He attributed the lop-sidedness of the vote—11,922 to 1,973—to "a last minute injection of fear by the Soviets."

The American commandant said the "true nature" of Soviet efforts to end the walkout had been revealed, and added:

"It is simply a matter of blockade. The Soviets never abided and never intended to abide by the New York agreement."

nounced that the Hill amendment requiring mutuality of collective bargaining probably would reach a vote today. This is the first of the four bi-partisan proposals. It may pass without a record vote.

The unexpected speedup developed following:

1. A Democratic policy meeting at which the utility of trying to bring together southern conservatives and northern liberals was discussed.

2. A charge on the floor by Sen. Taft (R) Ohio, that the Democrats were delaying action on the bill. Taft suggested they were "filibustering their still plans to offer his collection of Taft-Hartley modifications as a substitute for the administration measure, said he still is confident.

Both sides conceded that the decision will be "close"—a matter of three or four votes in the balance—but the odds seem to favor the Taft forces.

The name "grampus" is a sailor's corruption of the Italian granchio, "great fish." The grampus is a cetacean (aquatic mammal) common in almost all seas from Greenland to Tasmania, not frequent in the Atlantic, well known on the British coasts.

BELIEVE MOSES WILL BE NAMED

dent of U. S. Steel's largest "captive" coal company, the H. C. Frick Coke Company, has the matter under consideration.

Authority for this statement was George H. Love, president of the Pittsburgh Consolidated Coal Company, who said in Pittsburgh last night "completion of the details will necessarily take some time".

Love, whose company is the largest commercial coal producer in the world, added that "a number of operators in Pennsylvania, northern West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois" have approached Moses with the proposal.

He objected to the word "czar", however, as "an unfortunate reference to what should be a constructive move."

"The purpose," Love explained, "is to bring order and dignity into labor relations of the industry and to avoid the chaos which has too often attended labor negotiations and inconvenienced the public."

Elmer Ambrose Sperry (1860-1930) invented the gyro-compass, which eliminated the variations due to the earth's magnetism. It was adapted to ocean navigation.

HARRISBURG, June 15—(INS)—The appointment of former forests and waters secretary James A. Kell as director of the western division of the Auditor General's Department was announced today by Auditor General Weldon B. Heyburn.

The post carries an annual salary of $6,500 a year and the appointment is effective immediately.

Kell, who was in the cabinet of former Gov. Arthur H. Edward Martin from 1943 to 1947, will have headquarters at Pittsburgh and will supervise the department's activities in 15 western Pennsylvania counties, Heyburn said. Kell resides at Alexandria.

Senator Martin Blames Foreign Policy For Crisis

ternational "do-gooders," replaces our Declaration of Independence with a standard of government contrary to the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

"Self-reliance, industry, and thrift, would become forgotten words in our language," he declared. "No man would find it necessary to engage in the pursuit of happiness through his own efforts. Food, clothing, housing, etc. would be provided by the government, together with security in the event of unemployment, sickness, disability, widowhood, and old age."

"These are the rights represented as guaranteed in article 25, of the so-called Universal Bill of Human Rights. Let me call your attention to the fact that our government had a large part in the framing of the new basic law for western Germany. That document has been presented by our State department as a constitution and a charter of liberty for that part of Germany occupied by England, France, and the United States. But it is not, and cannot be, a constitution, because it ignores the American principle that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed."

German People Not Consulted
"The people of western Germany were not given an opportunity to ratify its provisions or to consent to its adoption. The whole charter is filled with joker clauses that nullify the hope of individual freedom for the 46 million people of western Germany. In one section, it recites high sounding phrases about liberty and freedom, and in another section, it sets up machinery by which every right can be taken away by any tyrannical ruler who reaches a place of power."

Senator Martin then gave examples of how this could be achieved. "In these days of conflicting philosophies of government, it is our duty to our country and our flag to inquire into the motives which led to this abandonment of American principles," he said. "Was it because there was developed in our own government, a lack of faith in the American system? Are they working for the establishment of the planned, regulated, and controlled economy of the welfare states?"

"These are grave questions. They arise in a time of crisis as stern as those in which our Founding Fathers gave us liberty. The ideals and beliefs symbolized by the flag are in danger."

"On this day, dedicated to the glory of the Stars and Stripes," he said in conclusion, "let us honor all who died under the flag to keep it free. Let us declare unrelenting war against every force that would undermine or weaken the American plan of individual liberty and opportunity."

Conference In Pittsburgh

Senator Martin was brought to New Castle by Roger W. Rowland, chairman of the Republican County committee, and a member of the reception committee of the Consistory, and Howard B. Cummings, of the United Engineering and Foundry company, who had a conference with the Senator in Pittsburgh during the afternoon. The official reception committee of the Consistory was headed by Ill. John E. Elliott, 33, Past Commander-in-Chief of the Consistory, Ill. Welby O. Rugh, 33, also a Past Commander-in-Chief, with Charles F. Morrow, assistant chairman, Ill. Chester C. Sweesy, 33, Jacob F. Wachtman, and Roger W. Rowland.

Senator Martin left later in the evening for Washington where Congress is still in session.

At the conclusion of his address, he was presented with a plaque as a memento of the occasion by Commander-in-Chief C. Merle Raisley.

Hopkins President Addresses Class At Philadelphia

Dr. Bronk, John Hopkins President, Addresses University Of Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA, June 15—(INS)—The largest graduating class in the history of the University of Pennsylvania was warned today that "fear and doubt" could destroy the American way of life.

Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of John Hopkins university, told the graduates:

"If we lose that freedom for which our ancestors faced danger and death, it will be because individuals in craven fear shrink their responsibilities as Americans."

Dr. Bronk added: "It is unthinkable that 150 million free Americans, fortified by knowledge, should have less faith in the future of democracy than did our ancestral pioneers."

He told the graduates that the future of the country was "endangered less by those who would seize power than by the many who refuse to accept their democratic responsibility for the affairs of the nation."

The university conferred 2,029 degrees in course, four honorary degrees and 101 diplomas and 43 certificates during its 193rd commencement.

Harold E. Stassen, president of the university, presided and conferred the degrees.

More than a thousand were present by the time picnic dinner baskets were opened at 6:30.

Earlier in the afternoon 22 athletic and other contests were held for youngsters and oldsters alike. The company had provided a host of very nice prizes for the winners.

Softball Game
After dinner, and in between showers, a lively softball game offered as much pleasure to the

In View Of News Of The World

By J. C. OESTREICHER, INS Foreign Director

Italian democracy apparently has won a major victory in Trieste, where the first free elections in 27 years put into office a city council that favors the city's return to Italian rule.

This queen port, with its deep harbor and shipbuilding plants, thus promises to become Italy's first territorial compensation since the war.

The balloting is certain to strengthen the hand of Italian Prime Minister Alcide De Gasperi. He has lost out for the present in efforts to regain at least a trusteeship over the former Italian colonies in North Africa.

Trieste More Valuable
But in many respects Trieste is far more valuable than the great stretches of desert that Premier Mussolini sought to develop, although its acquisition will not help in solving Italy's problem of over-population—the main reason for the De Gasperi regime is attempts to re-establish the lost Italian empire at least in a watered-down form.

Three separate factions were represented in the Trieste balloting. One, which proved to be the strongest, favors annexation by Italy. A second wanted to maintain the more or less independent status of a free territory which has prevailed since the war. The third, a seemingly hopeless minority, bid for allegiance to Yugoslavia.

The elections came at a comparatively peaceful time. A year ago, Trieste was a powder-keg. Pessimists spoke of it as a possible new Sarajevo, the birthplace of the third world war. An army of a half a million Yugoslavs stood poised at its borders and a mere handful of 10,000 American and British troops was the only bulwark against invasion.

Marshal Tito Breaks
Since that time Marshal Tito has broken with the cominform and is moving as much as he can into the orbit of western Europe. The change-over was reflected almost immediately in Trieste, where nearly unbearable suspense and tension lifted magically and there was a sudden end to the almost nightly "incidents" which had taken a heavy toll of lives over periods of weeks and months.

The importance of Trieste as regards European trade is a matter of history. It was developed to its apex when Dalmatia was part of the Austro-Hungarian dual empire and the Mussolini made certain that the beautiful highway that curves along the gulf of Venice served its full purpose in peace and in war.

Both Italians and Yugoslavs have claimed a majority in the area. But the Yugoslav pretension was regarded as an unofficial one, even artificial, as Tito settlers by the thousands spread his propaganda at the first opportunity. Those operators proved them-

There is something all wrong with these United States of our. Else there could not be such a marked increase in Communism. There could not be so much graft and waste in government. There could not be such outrageous prices for food in a country where food grows so abundantly, and where there are still millions of acres of untillable land.

There could not be thousands and thousands of poor and hungry people when the banks are bursting with money.

There could not be such stupid and inefficient public servants as there are now saddled upon us in ever-increasing number.

Do you know what is wrong with these United States of ours? I And You.

I put myself first because, having taken it upon myself to "look at life" and report my findings to you, I am even more to blame for my neglect and laziness than you are for yours.

But you, too, are to blame, and you know damn well you are. This is supposed to be a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people."

You and I are "the people" of whom Lincoln spoke. How much do we know about government, and how much do we do about it?

In theory you and I are the government. But are we in practice?

In the three years I have lived in this particular community, I have attended just one town meeting.

I have seen many things that I should and could be remedied. I and my fellow citizens have had plenty of opportunities to speak out and call for improvements.

Did we do it? No! The very evening the town meeting were held we had to go to a show in New York or look at a favorite television program or play Canasta or Oklahoma with friends.

If you were to ask me who represents me in Washington or in my State Assembly I would have to think for a long time before I'd remember.

All of us, I am sure, consider it ridiculous that a woman who buys a dollar purse has to pay a twenty-per cent luxury tax or that we have to pay any luxury taxes at all on so many necessities.

Have I written to my Congressman about it? Have I done more than just grumble?

Have you done anything about all the things you kick about? Have you exercised your precious privilege to be a free man or a free woman by sharing in your government "of the people, by the people, and for the people?"

There is going to be another town meeting here next Tuesday. By golly, I am going to attend and do a little governing of my own. Why not let you and me together give this blessed country of ours back to ourselves? (Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

selves to be past masters in their art.

Groups working under cover of night painted Tito's name and slogans on bridges, culverts and barns. It was nothing unusual for an Italian farmer to wake up in the morning and find the front of his house daubed with the hammer and sickle in a violent red.

That has occurred less and less in recent times as Tito has attempted to reach commercial and trade agreements with the west, to replace those nullified by Soviet satellite countries since his break with the cominform.

The various parties represented in Trieste thus were able to carry out their election campaigns without the danger of disturbances.

International observers feel that the voting represents the real will of the people and that in justice the western powers should not oppose Trieste's return to Italy.

De Gasperi says that if this is done and foreign troops withdrawn he will be able to guarantee the city and its population full freedom. He says also that if the Italian police and military are entrusted with Trieste they will comprise just as effective a bar to communism as the Anglo-American armies. Trieste does seem to be one prize that Italy has won fairly.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

CHILD AND HIS GARDEN

Fortunate the child who has a garden all his own at home. All the better if he also has a garden plot at school. He really gains full values from his garden only when he cares for it faithfully and regularly.

His achieving this end requires skillful, patient parental guidance.

At school the child may have had a strong motive to care for his garden well while other children were also caring for theirs and under the teacher's supervision.

But most school gardens have only just gotten started when vacation begins. The test of the child comes in how faithfully he cares for his school garden after school closes. It is very easy for him to neglect it, even to forget about it. If he does, he may have lost more in moral value than he has gained.

See It Through
If your boy or girl planted and cultivated a school garden make sure that he sees it through to fruition. You or Dad, especially Dad, should go with the child occasionally and help him or her. Also you should work out with him a program for his care and let him stick to this program, even if you must require him to do so. It might add to his interest if you would plan to purchase at market prices the produce of his garden.

So also with the home garden of vegetables which your boy or girl have started. Do your best to motivate him to choose to care for it well. Failing by persuasion, set requirements, which may involve penalties in terms of his losing cherished privileges or even serving a sentence at sitting unamused doing nothing for a definite period. By all means, rule out arguments and jawing.

Unless the child from eight to twelve or fourteen has a garden of his own which he cares for faithfully and which demands a reasonable amount of his time, he should be required to help care for the family lawn and garden. When Dad or Mother or both spend considerable time at such and are good companions of the child, they easily may induce him to share in the work, especially if they show great pleasure over having him help. Often, however, it may be necessary for the parents to work out a program with the child in which he will be right there with them on the job at certain definite times, and in which he will have some definite duties.

Some Requirements
This presupposes that the parents have not trusted wholly to winning all such help from the child by persuasion. They will be some requirements. These principles apply on the farm as well as in the city. (Continued on Page Eight)

Incidentally Father's Day is Sunday. It's not too early to tap him for a decent sum to buy something inexpensive.

Of the billions to be spent by the federal government this year, only one half will go to maintain the government, including the United States armed forces. . . the other half will go to the snatch grabbers and the salaries of the bureaucrats who regiment the number of snatch grabbers and write their checks. . . the bi-partisan spenders will rally the votes to maintain themselves in office.

That's the way totalitarian governments build power. . . That's the way people sell liberty as Esau traded his birthright for a mess of pottage. . . long ago Augustus Caesar rose to power by providing a social security system that gave free food to everybody. . . the able bodied as well as the feeble. This created so much idleness that he had to build circuses to entertain the people as a means of keeping down adult delinquency. . . To get money he had to broaden the tax base as reported to St. Luke in these words:

"And it came to pass in those days, that all the world should be taxed."

Successors of Augustus kept up the practice. . . Nero spent government money to import lions and tigers to entertain the people by eating Christians in the Coliseum. . . The spenders remained in power until the government went to smash and the barbarians took over. . . They refused to feed the idle, who, because they were starved to death, learned to do useful work, lay down in the streets and starved. . . The destruction of Rome was so complete that wolves howled in the streets for 1,000 years. . . Now, of course, the bureaucrats say that could not happen here. . . we are too smart and educated.

That's what the Germans thought. . . they were educated and yet by their own free votes they made Hitler dictator because he promised social security, socialized medicine, public housing, and subsidized groceries. . . He stirred their hate against the nation's successful men. . . those who made Germany great.

We do not have to learn the hard way. We, the people, can kick the bureaucrats off the federal payroll and drive the snatch grabbers from the public trough. . . Now is the time to write your Congressman and Senators. . . tell them you are against the snatch-grabbers schemes. . . such as federal housing, federal aid to education, socialized medicine and Brannan's plan to subsidize the nation's grocery bill. . . tell them you want government agencies cut down. . . not built up. . . Our country's financial structure must not be wrecked. . . all for a mess of pottage.

Washington Calling

(By Marquis Childs)

Assails State Of Near Hysteria

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The fantastic lengths to which the loyalty search is being pushed are daily more apparent. It would be absurd if it were not so serious for the well-being of the nation.

In this and a following column I want to analyze a case that seems to me to illustrate both the absurdity and the tragedy of what is happening. Quite apart from consideration of justice and ethics, it illustrates, too, the waste of time and money in a pursuit that seems to have less and less relation to the realities and necessities of the present day.

Mrs. Anne V. Alling, who has given me permission to present the details of her case, is 39 years old. Until she was suspended on a finding of the fourth regional loyalty board, which is the board for Washington, she was a stenographer in what was known as the "blind pool" at the Veterans Administration.

Because of several eye operations, Mrs. Alling has very limited vision and with several stenographers who are totally blind she

The big four have been unable to agree on a peace treaty for Germany. . . It looks like the Germans will just have to go on being peaceful until they do.

But it was a very nice meeting. The western powers and the Soviet part the warmest of opponents as always.

And the anti-Soviet states are assured of our continued financial support. . . just as long as Betty Grable continues to make $208,000 a year and the government continues to grab 86 per cent of it.

But if this frail little wage-earner ever should retire, 14 demerolies will be on their own. . . and hers are nicer.

Still, with so many nations going Socialist it's wonderful to be able to keep so much money as it is here and keep so little of it as elsewhere.

Incidentally Father's Day is Sunday. It's not too early to tap him for a decent sum to buy something inexpensive.

Unnumbered the Decembers. That friends that none remembers. Saw Julia wed to John. Forgotten all the others. Pledged faithful to remain. The fathers and the mothers. Who followed in their train.

Surely this life had altered. For living and the dead. Had John or Julia faltered. And each another wed. Of all who loved and married. Since then from year to year. Had but one dream miscarried. Then I had not been here. (Copyright, 1949, Edgar A. Guest)

JOBS UPON A TIME

Getting his education the hard way—by hard work in factory to earn funds for college, David Livingston, missionary and African explorer, finally achieved his ambition. He was born in a little village of Blantyre, Scotland, March 19, 1813. On December 8, 1840, when he was 27, he set sail for Cape Town where his labors began.

For years he lived among the natives, teaching and exploring. He discovered Lake Ngami, the Victoria Falls, Lakes Shirwa and Nyasa. He died on May 1, 1873. His faithful follower buried his heart under a tree, embalmed his body and carried it shoulder high through the jungle to the ship that took it back to England.

Born in Tafari Makonnen, Ethiopia, July 24, 1891, Haile Selassie ascended the throne of his country in 1930. He proclaimed a constitution and two legislative chambers and called in an American financial expert to set the country on the gold standard. In 1934 he protested to the League of Nations against Italian oil seizures. Not being supported by that body he returned to head his small army to resist the invaders, but was defeated and forced to flee to England. In 1941 he returned to Ethiopia to resume his throne, and since then he has continued his reforms to modernize his small kingdom.

Middle-Class Tradition

(By Holmes Alexander)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.—In various offices around town there used to be wall signs which read: "The difficult we do immediately—the impossible takes a little longer." That's how it has been with the 80th and 81st Congresses in their struggle to legislate under Mr. Truman. He has set these Congresses several difficult tasks—Greek-Turkey aid, the Marshall Plan, the Atlantic Pact—and the legislators have acted promptly. But in the domestic field Mr. Truman has several times asked the impossible—granting a little poetic license to the word. That is why the two post-war Congresses have taken so long to comply.

Breach Of Spirit Of U. S.
The President, to pick up the thread of a previous column, has asked the law-makers to favor the lower classes (workers, minorities and the poor) over the middle classes. This is a flagrant breach of the American spirit and tradition which have been in existence since 1776. One way to explain congressional action—and inaction—between 1947-49 is to examine what is meant by middle-class consciousness and to relate it to congressional behavior.

It is a middle-class feeling, for instance, that great power should not fall into the hands of Labor (proletarian) leadership. This feeling in America does not involve Labor's right to organize, to bargain collectively, to have its day in court. There are, it is true, still a few upper-class autocrats who would deny these rights to the lower classes but such men seldom get into Congress and, when there, no longer have the slightest influence. The real resistance to Mr. Truman's labor policies has come from the middle class who saw great abuse of power under the Wagner Act. This bourgeois refusal to favor the lower classes over the middle classes is now being dramatized in the Senate debate on the labor bill.

It is another middle-class feeling that thrift is a prime though homely virtue. All big corporations use the unbalanced budget to expand their enterprise, and it is characteristic of many noblemen to live on credit. But the bourgeois Congress has never cottoned to the debt-defying cost of Mr. Truman's welfare program.

Thrift Is Not Stinginess
Thrift need not be confused with stinginess or lack of humanity. A majority of Congress feels just as strongly as the President does about the desirability of housing, medical care and education. This would explain the almost frantic effort of Congress to "find the money" for welfare by cutting down other expenses. Congress, however, differs with Mr. Truman's notion that the lower economic classes have a right to "demand" material things from government. In many cases the resistance movement to Mr. Truman takes the form of a revision, rather than a refusal, of his program. There is a disposition to change Mr. Truman's welfare or hand-out concept into an insurance or self-help concept. This is clearly defined in congressional feelings that health insurance, for example, should be voluntary; that housing and education are still local responsibilities and should never become Federal stepchildren.

Getting A Little Impatient
Middle-class Congress, to tell the truth, has begun to get a little impatient about the administration's insistence on the "demands" of poverty-ridden states and persons. One of the most familiar quotations on the Hill is the Biblical one: "The poor ye have always with you." Congressmen, being mostly successful self-made fellows, are not sold on the idea that opportunity to spread-the-wealth taxation. It is, again, a middle-class feeling that small business is the economic backbone of the nation. But the main beneficiaries of government spending are usually big corporations and big labor unions—seldom, if ever, the 3.3 million small enterprises in America. More than a few congressmen feel that the Tru Deal is no friend of middle-class enterprise. Many Democrats have introduced independent bills for the salvation of the neglected bourgeoisie. Congressman Yates (D., Illinois) recently made a point that only the very rich and the very poor will have houses if the Tru Deal succeeds. He has a bill (H. R. 4597) to keep a roof over middle-class folks. Congressman Patman (D., Texas) has taken notice of how Federal purchasing agencies by-pass small business and has a bill (H. R. 4755) to remedy it. Patman has another bill (H. R. 1177) to capitalize small enterprises, especially "new business enterprises, including cooperatives."

Mr. Truman has often pictured himself as fighting the forces of greed and reaction. That is not the whole truth by any means. Much of the resistance to his program is offered by the forces of middle-class self-preservation. In asking Congress to discriminate against middle-class America, he has asked something almost impossible. Hence the long delay.

They Say

WASHINGTON — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower: "Very frankly, I firmly believe that the army of persons who urge greater and greater centralization of authority and greater and greater dependence upon the federal treasury are really more dangerous to our form of government than any external threat that can possibly be arrayed against us."

The World and the Mud Puddles

ABOUT POSSUM HOLLOW

Perhaps you would not remember this jingle of the good old days:

Cow meat am good and sweet,
Kidney stew I love too.
Pork chops are divine,
But of all de meats dat's good to eat

From turkey down to ham,
De one dat tickles ma palate de most

Is lamb, lamb, lamb!
And that sort of reminds me of another old jingle:

Bacon home am sweet,
Hamon meat am good.
Possum meat am very fine,
But gimme, Oh, gimme. Oh, how I wish you would

De watermelon growin' on de vine!
The chap that wrote the latter jingle was neither a confirmed meat eater nor a confirmed vegetarian. He liked a mixed diet. And this jingle making reference to possum meat carries me back to an exciting incident occurring at the Allegheny Country Club many years ago.

The Allegheny Country Club used to stage a delightful tournament in June of each year and invited all the golfers in the surrounding towns to participate in it and enjoy a real good time on the heights above Sewickley, Pennsylvania. And so, many New Castle golfers used to joyfully accept this offer of a very delightful time on the golf course and in the Club House.

The Unseen Audience

AND NOW LET'S HEAR FROM YOUR GOOD FRIEND AND MINE — THE ANNOUNCER

FRIENDSHIP

There was a famous ravine back of the Club, known as "Possum Hollow" where at proper times members and their friends would participate in a regular possum (Continued on Page Eight)

When your boy goes to college he seems to pick up a lot of queer talk.

He talks about extra curricular activities.

It seems that the college has a lot of regular studies or courses. These are to be followed regularly and everybody is required to take them.

There are a lot of other interesting things going on too. There are fraternities and clubs and parties and banquets and athletics and games and love making and even house keeping and having babies nowadays.

These extra curricular interests seem to vie in importance with the regular courses. Sometimes they cost more too.

When a student completes the regular course he gets a diploma. He gets no diploma for the things on the side.

Sometimes it seems to Dad that these extras get more attention than the regular stuff. Maybe they are just as important in some ways too.

Dad usually does some things besides his regular job. People may know him better by these activities than by his regular work.

Medicine is giving us a longer life expectancy and Uncle Sam's taxes give us less reason to want it. —Dallas News.

NOT IRREDUCIBLE

Remember the $42,000,000,000 budget of last January? It was presented to Congress by President Truman with the word that it was irreducible—not a nickel could be cut off anywhere.

Meanwhile "disinflation" has developed, federal tax receipts are starting to decline and prospects of heavy deficit financing grow. Mr. Truman still insists that Congress must levy $4,000,000,000 in additional taxes. But Congress is afraid to do so lest the business situation deteriorate. In any event, no one knows whether higher levies would bring in more revenue. The saturation point may have been reached.

Now comes Frederick J. Lawton, director of the budget, who says that the budget is not irreducible, that he is in position to make recommendations to the President as to where items can be cut.

Lawton recalls that the federal agencies' estimates of their "irreducible needs" were reduced by $4,000,000,000 before the budget was presented to Congress. The heavens didn't fall when that reduction was effected. Nothing much would happen if another $4,000,000,000 were whacked off, except that the country's economy would be strengthened by keeping the budget balanced at no increase in taxes.

Lawton says it would be "practicable" for Congress to direct the President to reduce spending in the fiscal year beginning next month. It might be added that it is not only practicable but imperative if Congress has the welfare of the country at heart.

IRONIC POSSIBILITY

For a time the Russians hoped that the United States and Britain would split over world trade, thus making it easier for the Communists to spread revolution. There has been an impression recently that they have given up on that. But the U. S. and Britain are in the beginning of what threatens to become stiff rivalry.

Britain is taking the world petroleum market away from America. Recently London completed a deal with Argentina whereby that country obtains all its oil from Britain and will supply the British with meat and grain. Similar deals are pending.

Washington and London are conferring on freer trade with Europe. The British are striving for advantages over American trade and are clinging to their preferential system with the Empire. The pending International Trade Organization Treaty denounces such aims and attempts to minimize them. But some Americans are beginning to wonder whether America will have any foreign trade.

Fortunately for America, British prices under the Labor government are too high to be conducive to trade in volume. The British may try to do something about that by cheapening the pound instead of lowering prices by government economies, forgetting a lot of the "welfare state." Meanwhile, America is striving mightily with gifts to get Britain on its feet.

It would be an ironic development if America and Britain became involved in trade rivalry after Britain's prolonged dependence upon this country. But more ironic things have happened.

GIVES UP TRIP IDEA

It will be recalled that President Harry S. Truman, not satisfied with what Congress was doing with his legislative program, announced that he might make a travel appeal to the people.

President Truman has told members of the press that he had, at least temporarily, given up the plan for a trip over the country, probably meaning that he was better pleased by the outlook in Congress.

There may be in this connection arise the question regarding the soundness of the policy of any executive pressuring Congress to secure the legislation he recommends to that body.

Members of Congress are elected to represent the interests of citizens of their district, but they are also expected to support the national interests as well.

There should be free and open discussion of all proposals made to Congress, and a majority of the Senate and House should be permitted to vote according to their own judgment.

In the future, flat feet will not be cause for exemption from military service. In atomic warfare, apparently, there is to be no marching. Just running.

Flex-O-Later Plant Getting Under Way Here

Flex-O-Lators, Inc., an industry which recently moved into a plant on the site of the old rubber works in the Seventh Ward, has begun first production here of flex-o-lators for mattresses.

Production for other uses will begin with the installation of a wire tempering unit in the near future. The New Castle plant will supply the tempered wire for the other flex-o-lator plants in Carthage, Mo., when the unit is set up.

Fred Platt is general manager of the New Castle plant and his brother, Robert, is salesman. Jack Fix is plant foreman.

Flex-o-lators, wire rope insulators, are used between the springs and padding of automobile seats, furniture cushions and mattresses to keep the padding from sinking into the springs.

Last Day For First Quarter Tax Payment

Earned income tax office, city building annex, East street, was crowded this morning by individuals making payments on their employees tax for January, February and March. Today was the last day for payments for the first quarter. If paid later than today a penalty will be imposed.

Lewis A. McClung, tax receiver, stated at noon he was unable to make an estimate of the amount of employees tax paid during the morning because it must be compiled.

Some time ago he reported that employers had paid approximately $135,000 and individuals about $8,000.

In putting the earned income tax into being, city officials estimated receipts of $542,000 for the year 1949, the last quarter of which will be payable in 1950.

Young Boy Blamed For Fire Damages

Brilliant Student Sets Fire To School Building Causing Considerable Damage

PORTLAND, Ore., June 15.—(INS)—A 14-year-old boy faces action by juvenile authorities today for setting a fire which destroyed two portable buildings at the grade school from which he graduated last week.

The fire was set shortly before another blaze destroyed the main mill of the Peninsula Fuel & Lumber Company with loss estimated at $200,000.

Captain W. R. Curtis of the fire department said the youthful firebug admitted starting the blaze at Duniway school but did not tell why.

The boy's name was withheld, but he was described as a brilliant student before he finished the eighth grade. He lives in Eastmoreland, a blue-ribbon neighborhood served by Duniway school.

The buildings destroyed by the flames housed two classrooms and a cafeteria. Loss was estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000.

Albert W. Ross, supervising principal, reported that attempts are being made to locate the blaze in order to cut it off by excavation.

The first stamp duties were imposed by Holland in 1624.

Prosecution In Babich Murder Trial Near End

Expect Youth To Take Stand After State Concludes Its Testimony

MILWAUKEE, June 15—(INS)—The prosecution is set to wind up its first degree murder case against Milton Babich today in the slaying of his wife's 16-year-old sister.

The 19-year-old poker-faced youth is expected to take the stand after the state concludes its testimony to reiterate that the fatal shooting of Patricia Birmingham, Feb. 10 was accidental.

Babich is accused of killing Patricia "premeditatedly" during an attempt to "secure her into silence" over the pregnancy of her then unwed sister, Kathleen, 18. He faces mandatory life imprisonment if convicted of first degree murder. Wisconsin law does not provide for capital punishment.

Tour Route
The jury of ten men and two women toured through humid rain and fog yesterday the route Babich took the day Patricia was slain.

They visited the little appliance shop in suburban West Allis where the girl was last seen alive by witnesses and the corner where Babich admitted meeting Patricia. The jury also saw the spot where he told police he argued with her and where the fatal shots were fired, the section where he says he picked up the concrete block used to weight her body and the wharf from which he said he tossed the lifeless form into the Milwaukee river.

Babich accompanied the jurors in the bus while handcuffed to a bailiff. He was silent as municipal Judge Herbert J. Steffes led the panel past the locations mentioned in his confession of the killing.

HURT IN EXPLOSION

William Gurgacz, 39, of 701 East Long avenue, an employee of Axe's Market, received first degree burns of both arms, face and neck, when a gas oven exploded early this morning. Mr. Gurgacz was lighting the oven and was unaware that the gas had been turned on, and the explosion resulted.

He was treated at the New Castle hospital and later discharged.

Highland Church Service On Friday

Dr. Homer B. Henderson, of Grove City, will speak at a preparatory service in Highland U. P. church Friday evening, June 17, at 7:45 o'clock.

Communion will be observed Sunday morning, June 19, at 11 o'clock in Highland church.

The girl was revealed last night to have died.

Mr. Bates died Saturday morning following a cerebral hemorrhage. He was born in New Castle May 5, 1876, son of Edwin and Isabella Bates. He moved to Youngstown when he was a small boy.

Mr. Bates retired in 1929 as a foreman in the machine shop of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation where he had worked his entire life. He was a member of the Trinity Methodist church, Western Star Lodge No. 21, F. & A. M. and Aut-Mori Grotto.

His wife, the former Mary Flint, died in 1945.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Melvina Jones of Youngstown, O., two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Bunn, Youngstown, and Mrs. Walter Kinder of New Castle; two grandchildren, and a brother, Benjamin Bates, of Youngstown.

INTELLIGENCE HELPS
CHICAGO—A company's more intelligent employees may shy away from dangerous work and hence have fewer accidents, Prof. Willard A. Kerr of the Illinois Institute of Technology says.

Kerr shows the opinion on figures which show accident rates to be higher in departments where employees respond poorly to suggestion boxes which, he said, may indicate a lower level of intelligence.

hunt. One moonlight night during a tournament, such a hunt was proposed at dinner and the suggestion was seized upon with great enthusiasm by all those present.

Well, the hunt was organized—the dogs were assembled and the servants of the Club were also collected. We started for the Hollow, and it did not take the dogs long to tree several possums. A couple of the servants were good tree climbers and asserted they knew all about possum hunts.

Well, a brave pair climbed a tree and found a possum stretched out on a limb that was big and strong enough to support the two negroes. The darkeys had provided themselves with stout clubs, easily handled. One of the pair, firmly grasping his club was just at the point of driving a well aimed blow at Mr. Possum, when Mr. Possum spoke in a very gruff voice: "Don't you dare hit me!"

The offending negro promptly fell out of the tree. The hunt stopped right there. They gathered the negro up and found that he was not very badly hurt, but terribly frightened, as were the rest of the servants. We could not persuade them to take part in the hunt any longer. They started for the Club House and we followed them. In discussing the hunt afterwards among themselves, one of the servants was heard to remark: "The possums down in the Hollow talk; they speak good English. One of them warned us not to hit him."

It turned out that one of the golfers was a very clever ventriloquist and was capable of throwing his voice some distance and the distance was not prohibitive. But we thought the story too good to make any explanation to the servants. The chap that had fallen out of the tree was not badly hurt at all. He was able to get back to the Club House on his own legs, although they were a little wobbly to be sure, but with a little assistance he got safely back.

They never could get those two darkeys to hunt again in "Possum Hollow."

town or city. Too many farm children as well as city children are growing up in idleness, without learning to share in home responsibilities. (My bulletin "How Teach Child To Help At Home" and "Allowances" may be had in a stamped envelope sent me at 235 East 45th street, New York City.)

Thanks to the 4-H Clubs and similar organizations, many boys and girls on the farm are strongly motivated to carry through programs of raising fruit or vegetables. But how surely they carry through these projects successfully depends chiefly on their parents.

Some parents in summer or winter pay their children for helping about the home. If it results in increasing voluntary help by them it may be a good way. But it rarely has such effect. More often than not it renders the child less prone to feel himself a responsible member of the family and less ready to do his share.

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By DR. ERNEST G. OSBORNE

What About Grandparents?

Grandparents don't seem to be as important as they used to be. Nowadays, we often live far from our childhood homes and only on special visits do youngsters get to be with their grandpas and grandmas.

Indeed, there are not a few parents who do their best to make contacts with grandparents few and far between. They fear that the "old folks" won't use the right methods with their grandchildren, that they will spoil them or in some other way "upset the apple cart."

Of course, these things do happen, but probably not as often as we fear. It's good for children to know grown-ups other than their parents, too. Grandparents are naturally interested in their grandchildren and usually have a lot to contribute to their growing up.

Often they have more time to spend than do busy parents. Often, too, they are a bit more relaxed about children's behavior and are less likely to put undue pressure on children to be "little ladies and gentlemen". In lots of ways they can bring fun and satisfaction.

Many of us remember time with grandpa or grandma as being "high spots". We ought to give our children a chance for the same sort of experience.

scribed list. In that same year her husband died of his World War I wounds.

The transcript of Mrs. Alling's hearing before the regional loyalty board is nearly 100 pages in length. As she has done several times before, she denied under oath that she was ever a member of the Communist party. At times the interrogation seems almost as though it had been intended to be a burlesque on itself.

Question: Do you remember whether or not you told her, a woman suspected of being a communist in 1942 whom Mrs. Alling could not recall that you were knitting for the Russian war relief and volunteered to teach any comrade how to knit?

Answer: No, don't remember anything about that, and I don't remember knitting for the Russian war relief. Maybe I did knit a sweater. I think I did that for England, too; not just for Russia. Maybe I did but I can't remember that, but I could have...

Question: Well, almost all of us were knitting for the Red Cross and the things were channeled through to various places. I wondered why Mrs. Alling knitted especially for Russia. That was what I was trying to determine.

Answer: I wasn't just interested in Russia.

Mrs. Alling was questioned at length about her thesis for a master's degree in French at Emory university in Atlanta. It dealt with one of the novels of Andre Gide, who last year received the Nobel prize for literature. Mrs. Alling said it had nothing to do with communism.

At one time three FBI men, able-bodied and supposedly intelligent, were concentrated on a phase of the Alling case. How could this woman possibly be a threat to the security of a great and powerful nation? How have we become so preoccupied with fear? It seems to me high time that we asked ourselves some searching questions about our present state of near hysteria.

Arrest Made Near Portersville May Clear Up Thefts

Pittsburgh Police Believe Other Auto Thefts May Be Uncovered

PITTSBURGH, June 15.—Arrest of John S. Koval, 28, Munhall, for the alleged theft of the automobile of Max H. Forester, Pittsburgh coal company executive, is believed by state police to give definite clues on a gang of auto thieves operating in Western Pennsylvania for several months.

Koval, captured on the Ellwood City-Portersville road, about four miles from the spot where he abandoned the car, on Tuesday, admitted to the theft of the automobile, but denied charges by Forester that he had used a gun, according to Captain William R. Hanna of the Butler State Police barracks.

When captured he was taken to the Butler barracks and held on charges of larceny of an automobile and armed robbery, while police investigated similar robberies in the Lawrence county and Mercer county areas. He was taken to Pittsburgh by city detectives.

Posing as a used car salesman, Koval had asked Forester to demonstrate his car and had then pulled a gun on him, took his wallet and forced him out of the automobile, according to Forester.

MUST ENGAGEMENT RING BE DIAMOND

"Must a man present his fiancée with a diamond ring in order to be engaged to her? Is there any stone other than a diamond that is appropriate for this purpose? I am in love with a girl I should like to marry but I cannot at this time afford a diamond ring."

Answer: If you love the girl and want to marry her and you think her feelings for you are similar, ask her and let make the decision, explaining your financial circumstances.

The most popular engagement ring is a solitaire diamond but there is no reason why any stone or combination of stones may not be chosen. It is foolhardy for a man to buy a more expensive ring than he can afford just to make an impression on the girl whom he should at that time inform of his finances and his chances of improving them.

It is far better to do without an engagement ring as many are doing today; or to buy an inexpensive one and later in life when success comes, as it sometimes does to impetuous young men, replace it with a costly gem. At any rate, talk it over with the girl and get her reaction to the situation. Perhaps she would be satisfied with her birthstone or a zircon, instead of a diamond.

If she is in love with you, she won't refuse your offer just because you cannot seal the bargain with a diamond.

Question: Is it necessary for all those who receive announcements to send gifts to a new baby?

Answer: It is not definitely necessary to do so, but close friends and relatives who receive announcements and go to see the new baby usually bring a gift to it—generally a piece of wearing apparel.

Present your problems to Miss Martel who will promptly send personal replies to questions from readers including stamped, addressed envelopes.

Fifty To Sixty New Homes In Neshannock Twp.

Many Residences Being Added In District Bordering On North
City Line

Fifty to sixty new homes were built in Neshannock township in 1948 and at least that many more are being built or are expected to be built this summer, according to Thomas Lindsey, assessor for the township.

Much of the building is being done in the New Wilmington road district between Euclid avenue and Hazlet avenue. Several new streets are being made between the New Wilmington road and Mercer street to accommodate the new homes.

Many new houses are also being built on Buena Vista way, in Walmo, with houses being built on both sides of the thoroughfare all the way from the New Wilmington road to the Plank road.

Some of the finest homes in the township have been built in the district past Englewood avenue, between Mercer street and the extension of Albert street, and on Maitland lane between Walmo and Highland Heights.

Other building, including several business establishments, is being done in nearly every section of the township. Many of the older homes are keeping up with the times with remodeling.

NEED TENNIS COURTS

Tennis Enthusiasts,
New Castle, Pa.,
June 13, 1949.

Editor, New Castle News,
Mercer Street,
New Castle, Pa.
Dear Sir:

Attention should be called to the fact that there is a great shortage of tennis courts in New Castle. At the present there are only three courts that are all right to be used. There is one clay court at Gaston Park and two black-top courts at Washington High school.

Maybe there hasn't been much interest shown in the game the last few years but if the attendance at the courts is any indication, then the sport is "on its way back." There are quite a number of people who would enjoy playing tennis, but lack of the proper facilities keep them from doing so.

In most of the other third and even fourth class cities, tennis is becoming a leading sport. This sport is being taught in most of the high schools. Well organized tennis leagues, tennis tournaments and teams may be found. These smaller cities have more courts than we do in New Castle.

This isn't a letter to find fault with the recreation of New Castle, for it has greatly improved in the last few years. Playgrounds have been established and are well supervised, swimming pools opened and other activities planned. But think of the older "youngsters" who enjoy tennis!

We tennis enthusiasts think something should and could be done about it. We are looking forward to a better tennis recreation program in the city of New Castle.

JOHN MITCHELL,
Chairman of "Tennis Enthusiasts."

HARD CANDY HALTS TRIAL

LINCOLN, Neb.—(INS)—A piece of hard candy caused postponement of a district court trial in Lincoln.

The all-woman jury had been selected and attorneys were waiting for the judge to appear when one of the jurors passed around a sack of candy.

A few moments later, another juror hurried into the judge's chambers—with a broken upper denture.

The case was put off until the following day to permit her dentist to repair the damage.

Around Hollywood

By FRANK NEILL
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, June 15—Lon Chaney owns a reputation for being able to absorb more punishment making movies than any actor in Hollywood.

Chaney, son of the great silent screen star, is a rough, tough cookie who can handle his dukes like a stevedore in a barroom brawl and shakes off cloutings that would fell an Asiatic rhinoceros.

The husky launched his celluloid career as a stunt man. His early training now comes in handier than an umbrella in a thunderstorm, seeing as how he usually is cast as a "heavy."

The "heavy," of course, is the villain in any dramatic opus, which means that the slick-haired leading men generally get to beat the billyhead out of Chaney.

Ultra Cautious
Movie moguls are ultra-cautious about allowing their valuable hooks of acting flesh perform dangerous antics for the sake of art—and the box-office take.

If a pretty-boy hero gets his classical profile bashed in, for example, it halts production on the flicker and aggravates the producers' pet ulcers while one and all sit anxiously around waiting for the injured star to recuperate. It costs lots of moo-la.

Not Keen For Action

Few male stars will perform in an action scene. You'd be surprised how many of the so-called he-men of Hollywood throw up their pink paws in horror at the slightest suggestion that they feign a "double" and do the dirty work themselves.

But Lon Chaney likes nothing better than belting his way through a fight scene. He does on a day's chores that call for rough stuff and slambang body contact.

"I always work out my own screen fight routines," Chaney explained. "I really like to do them. If somebody else maps out the action, the rough stuff is liable to be soft-pedaled for fear of maiming the actors. That ruins a movie fight."

Chaney is Tough
If Hollywood had more characters like Chaney that fine fraternity known as stunt men could start applying for their old age pension right now.

Chaney has spent sundry days in bed and has eaten his dinner off many mantle pieces as a result of his movie roles.

His late father, one of the immortals of Hollywood, went through countless physical tortures for his own roles.

And young Lon Chaney, after each day's work, is sent to the studio hospital for a double-check by medics, a steam bath a rub-down.

No other actor can make that statement.

EROSION PREVENTION DEMONSTRATIONS

The number of demonstrations established by the Agricultural Extension Service in Lawrence county for preventing soil erosion has climbed several notches this spring. This is true not only for Lawrence county but for the whole state on the basis of information received from extension agronomists of the Pennsylvania State college. More than any other one practice, contour strips is featured in these demonstrations on erosion prevention. A total of 53 of these layouts have been established with extension assistance on Lawrence county farms.

For the whole state extension strip demonstrations for erosion prevention totaled 5,456 at the start of 1949. Reports from all 67 counties indicate a total of 1,423 requests to county agents for all assistance in soil management programs, most of which entail use of strips for erosion control.

Indications are that all these requests will be filled. The number of new extension demonstrations or erosion prevention easily should be enough to put the state total well beyond the 6,000 mark. In fact, if all new requests resulted in additional erosion control layouts, the new state total would be nearer 7,000.

Farmers interested in any kind of soil management information, whether it involves erosion prevention or other problems, may get the help of the Agricultural Extension Service by asking at the Agricultural Extension Office, 206 Post Office Building, New Castle.

Several published leaflets are available suggesting erosion control practices which are practical.

Will Arraign Girl On Murder Charge

LANCASTER, Pa. June 15—(INS)—Jean Sonnen, 14-year-old Lancaster County farm girl, is slated to be arraigned today on a murder charge stemming from the fatal beating administered the six-year-old son of her employer.

District Attorney J. M. Ranck said the girl, described as a hired girl and baby sitter, will be arraigned before alderman J. E. Wetzel.

The victim, Ronald Glen Keller, of Lititz, R. D., only five days before the tragedy, admitted beating the boy with a piece of kindling because he had annoyed her, according to state police Sgt. Styles Bridges.

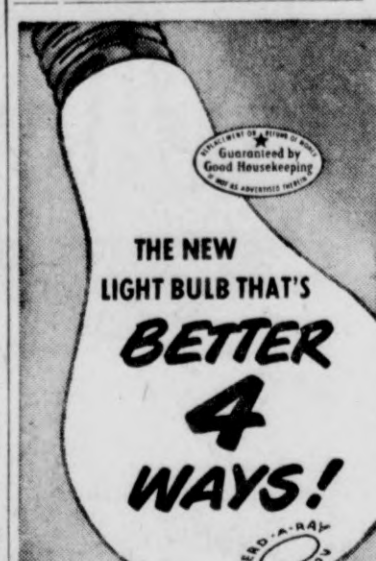

The beating occurred in the cellar of the Keller home while the girl was doing the family washing.

State police quoted her statement in which she had said she had struck the boy with the wood after he had pulled the washing machine's extension plug from a wall socket.

Drive Slow—Children Move Fast

"Assignment; America"

By INEZ ROBB
(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)
(Distributed By International News Service)

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 15.—If the theory of guilt by association holds any legal water, I might as well give up and save the FBI the trouble of coming after me.

Because I have had a soupcon of association here and there with a few of the persons accused either as Communists or sympathizers in recent statements introduced at the Washington, D. C., trial of a Miss Judith Coplon for espionage.

I cannot tell a lie. It is the truth, so help me, that once at a very large party I entered the ladies' retiring room just as Miss Helen Hayes finished powdering her nose and prepared to exit.

However, I never felt that this constituted a formal introduction to the lady, if that is anything in my favor. Furthermore, if Miss Hayes is a Commie, I am an anarchist. But why I should rush to her defense is more than I can understand when she has a husband, Charles MacArthur, who is too much more fluent in Anglo-Saxon than I.

I cannot deny the fact that once, ten or twelve years ago, I interviewed Edward G. Robinson.

Under Duress

But I can produce hundreds of character witnesses who will swear that I did the interview under duress, that Robinson is not my type and that when I pick my own Hollywood assignments, I don't mess around with nobody by Clark Gable, Sir Laurence Olivier and Charles Boyer.

As long as I am in the movie groove, I might as well come clean about that episode during the coronation season in London in 1937. Here I expect to throw myself on the mercy of the court, since I was clearly the victim of a mob of British movie fans, a rugged species that can give the American variety to Frederic March, a gent I had never seen before or since, and I was directly in the path. As I was going down for the third time, March pushed me and another woman into a car, dove in himself and thoughtfully barricaded the door.

The other woman turned out to be Mrs. March. And when the car had outdistanced March's worshippers, we all three bowed formally, I got out and took a taxi and an aspirin back to my hotel.

Really Subversive Stuff

However, I am coming to the really subversive stuff now. About fourteen months ago, I went up to Boston university to speak at the annual banquet of the journalism school.

On my right at dinner sat a distinguished looking gentleman, who turned out to be Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of the university. And my goodness, what a good, hot lot of subversive talk we had that evening.

We talked about Idaho, my home state, where Dr. Marsh, educated for the ministry, had gone on his first missionary venture to convert the heathen. Never met a more heathen anywhere, Dr. Marsh said, or more beautiful scenery.

Then we discussed Arnold Toynbee, the English historian, and both agreed it was mighty pleasant to find so distinguished a scholar insisting that a return to God is one of the prime requisites for saving our western way of life.

When we had "et" our way through the home economics department's standard banquet fare and got down to coffee, Dr. Marsh noted with melancholy satisfaction that I declined cream in mine.

"Cream in the coffee strangles the intestines," he said in a voice both sad and scholarly and probably, for all I know, subversive.

Until ten years before, Dr. Marsh continued, he had been as happy as a cat with cream. Then came the fatal night he had dined with the heads of the various schools that comprise Boston U. Kismet placed him next the head of the medical school.

The MD took Dr. Marsh off cream permanently that night when he explained that the medical school had had nothing better to do for years than investigate what cream in coffee does to the human plumbing. What it does, apparently, shouldn't happen to a cast-iron pipe.

"He kept saying 'It strangles the intestines,'" Dr. Marsh revealed gloomily, "saying 'Leave that poison out of your coffee and you'll probably live to be ninety.'"

Dr. Marsh looked subversively at the cream pitcher. He sighed: "I may live to be ninety. But drat it, I'm not going to enjoy it without cream."

Indiantown Gap To Open Again

Second Summer Encampment Of 79th Infantry Reserve To Start Saturday

INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa., June 15.—(IN6)—The vast Indiantown Gap Military Reservation was ready today for the second summer encampment of the 79th Infantry Reserve Division starting Saturday.

The 346th Field Artillery Battalion, a regular army unit from Ft. Bragg, N. C., arrived at Indiantown last evening prepared to train the 79th's Artillery which fires 105 mm. guns.

The two week encampment, which will end July 2, will afford training for 1,500 reserve officers and enlisted men.

Training schedules call for 10 to 12 hours work each day except Sundays under a "down to earth and rigorous conditions possible to acclimate the men to field living," according to Maj. Byrd Sargent, of Washington, D. C., a regular army instructor.

Forty engineer units from the 2nd Army Area, embracing seven states near Pennsylvania, will participate in the training.

First in Nation
The division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Wilson, of Philadelphia, was the first reserve outfit in the nation to be trained in the use of the 57mm and the 75 mm recoilless rifles developed in the closing stages of World War II.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, army chief of staff, and Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of army ground forces, are expected to inspect the division during training.

The division's reserve components are headquarters, the 314th and 315th Regiments and the 311th Field Artillery Battalion. The 314th embraces three battalions west of the Allegheny mountains while the 315th covers a similar number of subordinate units east of the mountains.

General Wilson will be assisted by Brig. Gen. Albert H. Stackpole, of Harrisburg, assistant division commander; and Brig. Gen. J. Cavin Frank, of Harrisburg, division artillery commander; Col. J. B. Carroll, of Washington, U. S. Army instructor in charge; and Lt. Col. W. E. Simpson, of Washington, division unit instructor.

Patients Asked For Comments To Improve Service

Patients At Jameson Memorial Are Asked For Suggestions On Leaving

In an effort to improve the service to patients at the Jameson Memorial hospital, each patient as he leaves the hospital is given a card with a self-addressed envelope in which he is asked to make comments on the care and service he received while the guest of the hospital.

It is hoped in this way to give the hospital authorities a clearer understanding of their own work and to improve the service to patients wherever possible.

Patients are asked to be frank and to make any comment they desire, whether it is favorable or not.

The letter states in conclusion: "We want to be sure that the hospital is fulfilling its obligations to the patient. We cannot feel that this has been accomplished unless you leave with the conviction that you have received hospitable, friendly, and sympathetic attention."

IN THE OPEN

A fledgling sparrow hawk moved in with us the other day and promptly became the storm center of one of the most memorable feuds to disrupt the peace and quiet of our rural routine. He arrived in a cardboard box, and like every homeless waif who reaches our doorstep, was taken in with open arms by my unsuspecting wife. Advance billing had listed him as a baby "hen" hawk, but he turned out to be a sparrow hawk founding, as cute as Christmas, and quite handy with his beak and those needle-point talons.

He had apparently fallen from the nest, and displayed a ravenous interest in a handful of ground beef as soon as he had been placed in a cage box on our screened-in back porch. For a day or two all went well. He was given the mundane name of Henry and he ate and slept and otherwise comported himself as a mannerly young falcon should.

We promoted him from ground beef to raw beef trimmings and since then he likes nothing better than to mangle a gory chunk of this stuff, holding it down with one foot while performing murderous mayhem with his hooked beak. One night he discovered he could scramble out of his box. This gave him the run of the whole back porch and trouble started immediately.

Love High Places
Hawks love high places and Henry began to feel the urge to try those long falcon wings. He would raise them high above his back and run full tilt across the porch in a most comical performance. After a day or two of this he took to launching out in short flights. First he made it to the seat of a wicker chair. This was not high enough so he tried for the chair arm and soon mastered that ascent. The next step was up the wicker to the top of the chair back.

Here he was at a height which satisfied him for a day or two, until he spied the house plants on a shelf high in a corner of the porch. My wife had long since taken to veiled threats and mutterings about birds coming along and whitewashing her newly scrubbed porch furniture. Then one day she stepped out and there was Henry reposing splendidly in the middle of her prize begonia.

This called for drastic action. I will be a long time forgetting the tempestuous scene in which the young kestrel, protesting bitterly, was evicted from the begonia. He went on to greater heights and in another day had settled down for a cozy nap in the heart of a tremendous fern which occupies a stand at least seven feet off the floor.

My wife is now alternately breathing fire and calling us out to see the latest cute caper on the porch. Eventually we'll fling wide the door and watch the orphan sweep skyward where he belongs. In the meantime the screens are a mass of baby feather fuzz and the whole porch is a mess. But I'd like to see anyone try to hurt that pampered hawk while my wife is on hand.

Fireflies Light Up Place
Shortly before the witching hour of midnight we pulled up by the roadside edging the wide shallows at the head of a large reservoir. The swinging beam of a giant searchlight, ballyhooing a tent show some miles distant, mirrored itself on the placid surface of the dam. The moon had not yet put in appearance, leaving to a host of fireflies the task of lighting up the hidden pathways through the cattail marshes.

Suddenly a booming baritone echoed across the water as a big bullfrog serenaded his lady-love. "Be drowned—better go round!" he bellowed, loud enough to waken all echoes for a good half-mile. Soon his friends joined in the song-fest. The air fairly shook with the deep-throated rumbling as the big fellows staged one of the finest concerts I have heard in many a night.

A courting barn owl added to the mystic witchery of this night episode by suddenly snoring his hunting cry from a thicket edging the water. A moment of silence followed this outburst and then the bullfrogs returned to the choir loft, fairly busting their baritone buttons as we drove on through the darkness.

Gorgeous Mountain Laurel
The weekend found us in the high country, for a quick look at the gorgeous show put on by the mountain laurel. The showy terminal clusters were in full flower. Beauty and death walk hand in hand when the laurel blooms. It is said that honey made from these lovely flowers is poisonous and that the Indian who wished to commit suicide drank a decoction made from the young leaves.

The white clintonia was still blooming in the woods behind the laurel thickets. I saw the round-leaved orchid, almost at flowering stage, but could find no trace of the single yellow lady's slipper that we have admired each season in this bit of woodland. It has probably perished at the hands of some thoughtless "nature lover" who has carted it home to die in a garden corner completely unsuited to its wildling needs.

Free Methodists Hold Bible School Conference Tuesday

Plan For Opening Of Annual Camp Meeting On Vine St. Grounds On July 14

New Castle District of the Free Methodist church met on Tuesday on the Free Methodist camp ground, Marshall field, Vine and Scott streets, for a Sunday school convention, with workers from Mercer, Oil City, Ellwood, Sharon, Titusville and other distant points on hand for the sessions.

The afternoon and evening sessions of the convention, which drew large attendances, were addressed by district leaders who spoke on the work of the Sunday school and how attendances might be increased. Rev. Paul Splitstone, district superintendent, was host to the convention guests.

The afternoon session which opened shortly after 1:30 o'clock, was in charge of Rev. Elton R. Fox, who introduced devotional leader, Rev. A. C. Thompson. The address of welcome was given by Rev. P. R. Splitstone. Rev. E. Lorena Maynard, of the Arlington avenue church spoke of factors in building up the Sunday school. A D. V. B. S. skit was presented by Gladys Brown. Other afternoon addresses were given by Mrs. Sally Lawrence, Rev. Robert Mæze, Rev. Paul McGaffie and Rev. R. S. McGrew of Vandergrift.

Evening Session

The evening session, presided over by Rev. G. S. Woods, opened with the devotional period led by Rev. R. R. Blews of Sharon. Rev. P. C. Millard, conference Sunday school secretary, was heard on "Clearing the Atmosphere in Our Sunday School Hour." The evening program continued with addresses by Rev. H. H. Haskins and Rev. R. S. McGrew. Important material concerning successful Sunday schools was given to the Sunday school workers.

Extensive plans are being made for the third annual Bible conference and camp meeting to be conducted on the Croton district grounds starting July 14 and continuing through July 24. Several hundred from the surrounding area will be on hand for the conference. Nationally known speakers will be on hand to address the daily sessions.

The main services this year, as in the past two years, will be conducted in a large tabernacle type tent seating several hundred. Facilities are on the ground to feed those attending the camp for the entire sessions. Several cottages have been erected by various members of the Free Methodist church.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Bill Hall, ambassador-at-large to the American book trade, says he learned the importance of detail on his first trip to China. A Peking book dealer treated him to a sumptuous dinner of over a dozen courses. Hall was worried at the amount of food that was carried uneaten from the table.

"It will not be wasted," he was assured. "It goes to a restaurant down the street not so high-grade as this."

Hall asked, "What happens to their leftovers?"

The answer was, "It keeps traveling until it's all gone." Hall had a sudden disquieting thought, "How do I know," he asked, "that what we are having doesn't come from an even better place up the street?"

"No," said the Chinese merchant, "everything starts here."

During an unseasonable cold spell in Natchez, Miss., an old Negro, inadequately clothed, stood shivering in front of the Eola hotel, collar turned up. "Oh, wind," he muttered, "where was you last August?"

SAFE and SOUND

It is Safe—for you... for your family... for other motorists—when you make certain your car is in running order: That your brakes will hold in case of emergency. That the windshield wiper will work in sudden summer showers. That tires will grip the road. That headlights are focused correctly for driving at night. That your steering wheel will obey your hands. Safe—for summer and vacation driving.

It is SOUND—because statistics prove that official state inspection has cut traffic accidents due to mechanical failure of cars in Pennsylvania to 3.2% while the national average for such accidents is 17.5%. So sound—that safety experts are urging all states to adopt such a measure.

Your car must carry an official state inspection sticker by July 31st—or you will be violating the law. Get your car inspected today. There will be no extension of this inspection period.

Just how high is "HIGH COMPRESSION"?

WHEN the talk turns to cars and car engines these days, that's a topic you hear much about.

So it's fairly interesting to note that, even back before the war, Buick engines like this one were touring the testing grounds with compressions as high as 10 to 1.

Even later than that this same big Buick power plant has been filling our engineers' notebooks with data on 8 to 1 compression ratios.

What has come out of this? Two or three interesting points.

First of all, that this big Buick Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight already has a compression ratio that gets as much out of present fuels as any engine on the market.

Next, that these ratios can readily be stepped up to fit higher octane gasolines as they become available.

And probably most important of all, that high compression is only one measurement of a good engine.

There's the fundamental matter of engine efficiency—power output per cubic inch of displacement, engineers call it. On that score, Buick stands where it always has—just about tops in its field!

Which means, in very simple words—better go see for yourself.

The fun you get from your car—the pleasure and satisfaction it gives you—are best measured in just one place—behind the wheel.

So we invite you to see your Buick dealer for a firsthand test of Buick. Take it in your own two hands and find out how good it feels, how full of get-up-and-go.

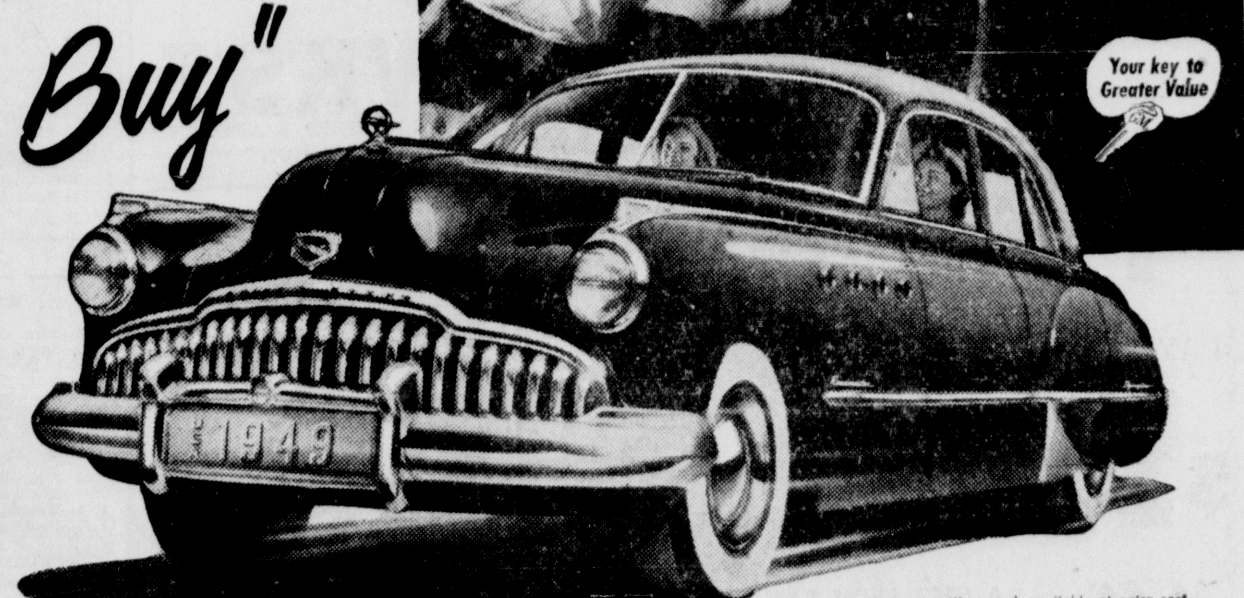

It won't take long to make it pretty clear that the place to get your order in is the place where you get Buick power.

Ohio Barge Strike Ends

PITTSBURGH, June 15.—(INS)—The steamboat "Monongahela" of the Ohio Barge Lines, Inc., a U. S. Steel subsidiary, will pull out Friday for New Orleans with a load of steel. It will be the boat's first trip since the line was struck nearly two years ago.

The strike, which started in August, 1947, ended yesterday with approval of two union contracts for the firm's employees.

The contracts cover about 40 members of the CIO National Maritime Union, and some 16 members of the AFL Master Mates and Pilots Association.

The agreement gives the CIO members wage raises ranging from $20 to $25 per month and grants a union hiring hall.

The AFL officers were granted a union shop and "substantial" wage raises.

It is the male cricket that produces the sound so commonly heard. The sound is produced by the rubbing of the file-like edge of one wing over the rough surface of the other.

PLANE CRASH INVESTIGATED

LOS ANGELES, June 15.—(INS)—Armed forces experts examined the melted wreckage of a navy transport plane today in an official investigation of a crash which carried seven naval reservists to their deaths in fog near the outskirts of fashionable Bel-Air.

The twin-engine R4D rammed a canyon wall between Westwood and San Fernando Valley. The crash presumably occurred late Monday moments after the pilot radioed he could not find the landing strip at Clover Field in nearby Santa Monica because of the overcast.

Dodgers Increase Lead By Defeating Cards, Bucs Win

Pirates Edge Braves In Final Inning, Phils Beat Cubs, Indians Win

By LES CONKLIN
(International News Service Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, June 15.—There couldn't be and wasn't much point in arguing about it today—the Brooklyn Dodgers like bingo and the two-pants suit, are definitely here to stay.

In fact, after what happened last night during that 7-2 shindig at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, you might even go further and wonder if they aren't here to stay in front of the 1949 National League race.

Having started west behind a two-game lead, the Dodgers stepped right out under the opening bell and made it three.

Bucs Top Braves
The hard way, at that, beating back probably their toughest challenger, i.e., the resurgent Cardinals, in their own front yard. They thus picked up a full game, direct and in person, from one rival, while another—the Braves were making it a one-two punch by going down before the Pirates 4-3.

The Phillies beat the Cubs, 9-2, to ruin Frankie Frisch's managerial premiere at Wrigley field. They thus picked up a game each on the Cards and Braves.

The fifth-place Giants started west with a 2-0 win over the Reds, thanks to Larry Jansen's four-hitter.

Indians Scalp Sox
The American league, meanwhile, went into four night games, with one significant change in the standing.

The champion Indians jumped two places back into the first division with a rousing 10-5 defeat of the misguiding Red Sox. Joe Gordon's grand-slammer in the first inning put that on ice, and Bob Feller's six-hit pitching kept it there.

Cleveland's two-place jump included the Rex Sox, per se, and the Washington Senators who lost to the Browns, 7-2.

However, the one-two Yankees and Tigers remained, as is—three games apart—at the close of the evening. With Tommy Henrich returning to hit a two-run double and a three-run double, the Yanks blasted the White Sox, 15-3.

In sharp contrast was Virgil Trucks' one-hit defeat of the Athletics, 4-0, only 20 faced Virg.

Chuck Koney, rookie Red Sox infielder who lost his leg in an accident before the season, has been given a Boston scouting job.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

STOCKING OF Rainbows in County trout streams is only pouring money down a hole, according to Owen Fox, local outdoorsman, who says that of every four Rainbows stocked, only one is brought to line. He maintains that high water of spring washes silt and sand into the trout streams, and this acts like sand-paper, cutting the membrane of a Rainbow's gill. He maintains that because the water is too warm, and sand and silt, conditions, locally, are not conducive to stocking. He maintains even catfish, one of the hardiest of the piscatorial tribe, will not live under such conditions. He says that when Rainbows are stocked, locally, they either hunt for cooler water or die. It is different with a bass, Fox claims. The sun warms the water, and the bass go deep to find cool water, which he says isn't true of the Rainbow. . . . Several fishermen of this city reported to Here & There, early Tuesday morning, that conditions in the Big Run were not good for stocking Monday of Brook trout. They pointed out the water is too low, and as a result the trout could be seen flipping around, as though in the agony of death. They believe the Brook trout should have been transferred to the Slippery Rock, a much deeper stream. Brown trout was stocked in the S. R. yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gurth W. Rapson, of 915 Beckford street, have received word their son, Pfc. Donald G. Rapson, stationed at the Far East Air Force headquarters at Tokyo, is first string catcher on the Far East Air Force Base Tomraoese baseball team and is playing in games throughout Japan. The team is flown to and from games. Major William S. Barney who has coached baseball in Panama, Italy and Guam, is the coach. The team hopes to win the championship of the Fifth Air Force league. Pfc. Rapson went to Ne-Ca-Hi and New Wilmington high school, and was president of his graduating class last spring and caught in the County high school league. He also played with some North County loop clubs. He enlisted last August, and is now part of the Intelligence office personnel at Headquarters squadron in Tokyo. This is the first season in which the name of Mickie Huff has been missing from the baseball column of the Sports Page. . . . Dory Gunnett and Attorney "Peg" Thomas held a fanning-bee several days ago concerning the baseball going's-on of decades ago. In his day, Dory was a good twirler. Paul McCullough apparently is out of baseball for the summer. He is working delivering mineral water. Time was when Paul had water carried to him on the baseball field. . . . Tonight the All-Stars and the Indianapolis-Clowns clash at 8:15 p. m. at Flaherty field. . . . Jim Haydon, former soft-baller, who visited friends here, is now with the Louisville, Ky. Water Company.

Braves Acquire Mickey Livingston

BOSTON, June 15.—(INS)—The Boston Braves acquired Catcher Mickey Livingston from the New York Giants Tuesday on waivers. Livingston, who was left in New York when the Giants headed west yesterday, was awarded in a routine transaction to the Braves at the waiver price by President Ford Frich of the National League. Livingston is 34 years old. He appeared in 45 games for the New Yorkers last year and hit .212. He drove in 12 runs and hit two homers.

CONGREGATIONALS WIN

First Congregationals defeated First Methodist 12 to 3 in a church softball contest at Laurel playground last night.

Phillips and Jones had four hits each for the winners. Rider was the winning hurler and Hoch is charged with the loss.

First Congregationals have won eight and lost four in the church loop. The team is anxious to hook outside games. Scheduling can be arranged by calling 962-R and ask for Dave on Monday, Wednesday or Friday.

Total home run output for 1948 in Elmira in the Eastern League was eight. Albany and Elmira combined to hit nine in a Sunday doubleheader recently.

Aged Woman Drowns While Attempting To Save Young Boy

NEWFOUNDLAND, Pa., June 15.—(INS)—A six-year-old boy and his grandmother drowned last night in Wallenpaupack creek, Newfoundland, a short distance from the woman's home.

State police said there were no witnesses to the tragedy which took the lives of Lawrence Hadden, of Honesdale, and his grandmother, Mrs. Asher Baisley, 56, whom he was visiting.

Mrs. Baisley took her grandson to wade in the creek last evening and apparently drowned in an attempt to rescue the boy when he disappeared in a "drop-off" 15 feet deep, police said.

Two men discovered Mr. Baisley's body 30 minutes after she took the boy to the creek. Fifteen minutes later searchers recovered the boy's body from a deep part of the stream.
